MAD WORLD

Chicago steams into 11th on angry city list

By Leonor Vivanco REDEYE

Another day, another list about Chicago.

In the latest one, the city is 11th among 100 U.S. cities ranked by anger, according to a Men's Health list online this week. (What do you mean angry?! What the heck kind of list is this?)

The ranking system on this one? Turns out the magazine factored in the percentage of men with high blood pressure, FBI rates of aggravated assault and the Bureau of Labor Statistics' number of workplace deaths from assaults and other violence. Plus, it took into account traffic congestion data from the Texas Transportation Institute and speeding citations from the Governors Highway Safety Association.

OK, just asking: How come New York doesn't even crack the top 50? Those people are known for hating everything, and they came in at No. 57.

Well, that really makes our blood boil. So we came up with a list of our own.

11 THINGS THAT MAKE CHICAGOANS MAD

» Being a Cubs, Bulls or Bears fan

» Being stuck at O'Hare thanks to delayed or canceled flights

» Losing the Olympic bid

» Dealing with crime

» Paying parking meters and tolls

» Having the highest sales tax in the country

» Dodging tourists

» Hitting potholes

» Sweating in sticky, gross humidity or freezing in snowy, below-zero temps

» Hearing about corrupt politicians

» Missing one's CTA stop

Spilling ink on 'Blood' flaws

"The Wire" has long since bailed on Baltimore. "The Sopranos" slunk away with a whimper. And "Six Feet Under"? Buried in the HBO archives.

Yup, many of my favorite shows are long dead—living on in zombie form in my DVD collection. Of course, there are great network shows coming back this fall, "30 Rock" among them. But I cannot live on Liz Lemon alone.

Where's the profanity, the nudity, the murder? Answer: "True Blood."

For those who hate the show, I can't exactly blame you. At first, I found it super soapy, but about five episodes in, I was hooked like a werewolf on V.

I love Lafayette, feel sorry for Sam and am positively knock-kneed over Viking vamp Eric. And Jessica? Love. Her. If the fiery-haired baby vamp weren't the property of Bill, I'd adopt her myself.

But it's prime time for some tough love, especially in light of this week's Comic-Con debut of "True Blood" the comic-book series. Before show creator Alan Ball replicates certain characters and plot points on paper, there are some things he and his colleagues may want to stake:

Rutina Wesley's acting

Wesley, who portrays Tara, has skin so flawless she could singlehandedly shut down M.A.C. makeup. But Wesley's acting isn't good enough for a church play. She's all trembling lips and dramatic chipmunk-esque expressions. Did you see her this week? Gah! And that ever-changing accent. I'd like the name of her dialect coach. Foghorn Leghorn, perhaps? The only thing worse than Tara is her mother, a Bible-beating, scenery-chewing fugitive from a Tyler Perry film. They should either kill Tara off or turn her into a supernatural creature that cannot talk.

Sookie's pluckiness

I'm not buying that Anna Paquin is hot enough to lock down the lust of nearly every other character, living or dead, up to and including Alcide, the hottest werewolf in the world. And it's not all about aesthetics; her persona leaps over the line between endearing and annoying. It may be the fault of the plot, but I'm tired of her pushy, plucky heroine act. If I were Bill, I'd run all the way to Arkansas to avoid her.

Sam's origin subplot

One of my Facebook friends pointed out, and I agree, that Sam Merlotte's family is cringe-inducing. At first I thought it was cool to see the source of his shifting, but now these twangy, hard-luck relations are more like hammy guests on "The Jerry Springer Show" than actual characters. Maybe United or American Airlines can sponsor an upcoming episode that features the family getting a one-way flight out of Bon Temps. I'm guessing more than one "True Blood" fan would spring for these beggars' baggage fees.

Jury preparing for full day of Blago closing arguments

Chicago Tribune

Closing arguments could be given to the jury in a single day, U. S. District Judge James Zagel said Thursday after taking time estimates for the remarks from lawyers in Rod Blagojevich's corruption trial.

Based on the lawyers' estimates, jurors are in for an earful—more than a combined 6 1/2 hours of argument.

The judge tentatively set closings for Monday morning.

The closings will start with Assistant U. S. Atty. Christopher Niewoehner. That argument could run more than two hours.

Attorney Michael Ettinger, who is representing Blagojevich's brother, Robert, then will address the jury for an estimated hour.

He will be followed by Sam Adam Jr. for the former governor. Zagel noted Adam has been a "practitioner of the repetition style" of lawyering, so he asked for a specific time frame for Adam's remarks.

Another Blagojevich lawyer, Aaron Goldstein, said the closing argument by his colleague could last 2 1/2 hours.

"You're sure it's that small a period of time?" Zagel quipped.

"If your honor would like more, we certainly can accommodate you," Goldstein said to laughter in the courtroom.

Assistant U.S. Atty. Reid Schar said he will give the government's rebuttal argument. He said he could need more than an hour.

Zagel said he would press to have the jury hear everything in one day.

That likely means deliberations would start Tuesday.

Judge unlikely to release names

Calling the corruption trial of former Gov. Rod Blagojevich the biggest case he's ever been a part of and saying the threat of jury tampering is significant, U.S. District Judge James Zagel signaled Thursday he is inclined to deny a motion by news organizations to release the names of the jurors hearing the case before they reach a verdict. TRIBUNE

CPD uncovers drug cache

Chicago police recovered $1 million in cash and 26 kilos of cocaine with a street value of more than $3.25 million as part of an ongoing investigation into a drug distribution network, officials announced Thursday.

$500 MILLION

Gov. Pat Quinn announced more than $500 million in funding for mass transit projects during a rowdy morning news conference attended by protesters who say the state needs to invest more money in black communities. The funding includes $422 million for the RTA, which will give $253 million to the CTA, $157 million to Metra and $32 million to PACE, which provides door-to-door service for the disabled. Another $85 million will go to transit districts downstate.

Colleagues recall veteran officer's calming influence

Chicago Tribune
Officer Michael Bailey was known for his calming presence on the midnight shift in the Central District downtown. He was easily the quietest officer, but not too quiet to crack a few jokes or offer stressed officers a heartfelt, "Are you OK?"

"He tried to make sure everybody else was OK," Officer Germaine Wrencher said. "It doesn't take much to send you over the edge, so we try not to concentrate too much on the heavy part" of police work.

Wrencher was among hundreds of officers attending a wake Thursday at Leak & Sons Funeral Home for Bailey, who was fatally shot Sunday morning in an apparent robbery attempt. He is the third Chicago police officer killed in the past two months. Bailey's funeral will take place at 10 a.m. Friday at St. Sabina Catholic Church, 1210 W. 78th Place.

Inside the funeral chapel, police honor guards stood at each end of Bailey's open casket. His police hat, a wooden baton and white gloves were laid atop the casket.

An inscription inside Bailey's coffin read, "Let the work that I've done speak for me."

Outside the funeral home during the visitation, Police Superintendent Jody Weis joined members of an interfaith group who called on the community to help solve the murder. The reward rose Thursday to $70,000 after a blog dedicated to disabled police officers contributed $5,000, police said.

"Somebody knows who did this. They've talked, they've spoken, they've bragged. Somebody knows," said the Rev. Michael Pfleger, pastor of St. Sabina.

This marked the second wake for a slain officer at the Leak funeral home since May, when Thomas Wortham IV was fatally shot outside his parents' Chatham home by thieves intent on stealing his motorcycle.

Wortham's father, Thomas III, himself a retired Chicago police sergeant, attended Bailey's wake. He said he was stunned at the similarities between the shooting of Bailey and his son.

"I didn't believe it. Deja vu. Not again,"

Chicago Police Superintendent Jody Weis (center) greets an officer at the wake for slain Officer Michael Bailey on Thursday at Leak and Sons Funeral Home on the South Side.

SCOTT STRAZZANTE/TRIBUNE

said Wortham, who watched as his daughter Sandra pleaded for community help as part of the interfaith group appeal. "I think we should put forth the word that we won't tolerate it, won't allow it, and we will hunt you down and find you wherever you are," the elder Wortham said.

Wrencher said Bailey's sudden absence has left a gaping hole in his district.

"It's like a brick out of a wall. You're definitely going to miss it," the officer said. "We have to deal with it. It's the nature of the job."

By Ryan Smith FOR REDEYE

At 35, BMX legend Dave Mirra might seem a little long in the tooth to be jumping off 15-foot ramps. But at last year's Dew Tour stop in Chicago, he showed the kids up by taking first place in the Park competition.

Now Mirra, the current record holder for most X Games medals in BMX as well as a Rally Car pro, is back in the Windy City this weekend for the Dew Tour's Nike 6.0 BMX Open. Mirra chatted with RedEye about his bloody win last summer and the differences between biking and car racing.

Do you enjoy coming to Chicago for this event?

Definitely. It's a great city, and I've always had good luck here. I live in Greenville, N.C., so it's a small-town feel. Big cities are awesome. I like to people-watch.

How pumped are you about the Dew Tour?

It's one of the biggest events we have, and it's going to be awesome. Well put together. Moving it from Baltimore to Chicago was a great move.

How would you describe the feeling of BMXing to someone who's never done it?

It's almost impossible to describe. It's aggressive, it's precision to the finest. I just say, come out and try it. Get a bike and c'mon.

For this event last year, you suffered a pretty big fall and almost couldn't compete. What happened?

I fell during practice, and yeah, I got worked, knocked off. It was gnarly. Broke my nose. Pretty amazing, they weren't going to let me ride in the finals at first. I was like, "I got to, I qualified for this, I want to do it." It was pretty nuts. My nose would not stop bleeding.

Do you get injured a lot?

You got your daily nicks and bruises, but yeah, I mean you're putting everything on the line when you go out there and you have to commit. You have 60 seconds, and you gotta do what you need to do.

You also went to the hospital recently because of a case of bacterial meningitis. Are you recovered fully from that?

I am. That was a setback this spring and it was pretty crazy. One of the wildest ones for sure. The way that it came on, it was gnarly. Am I 100 percent? I don't think I'm ever 100 percent. I don't think it ever happens.

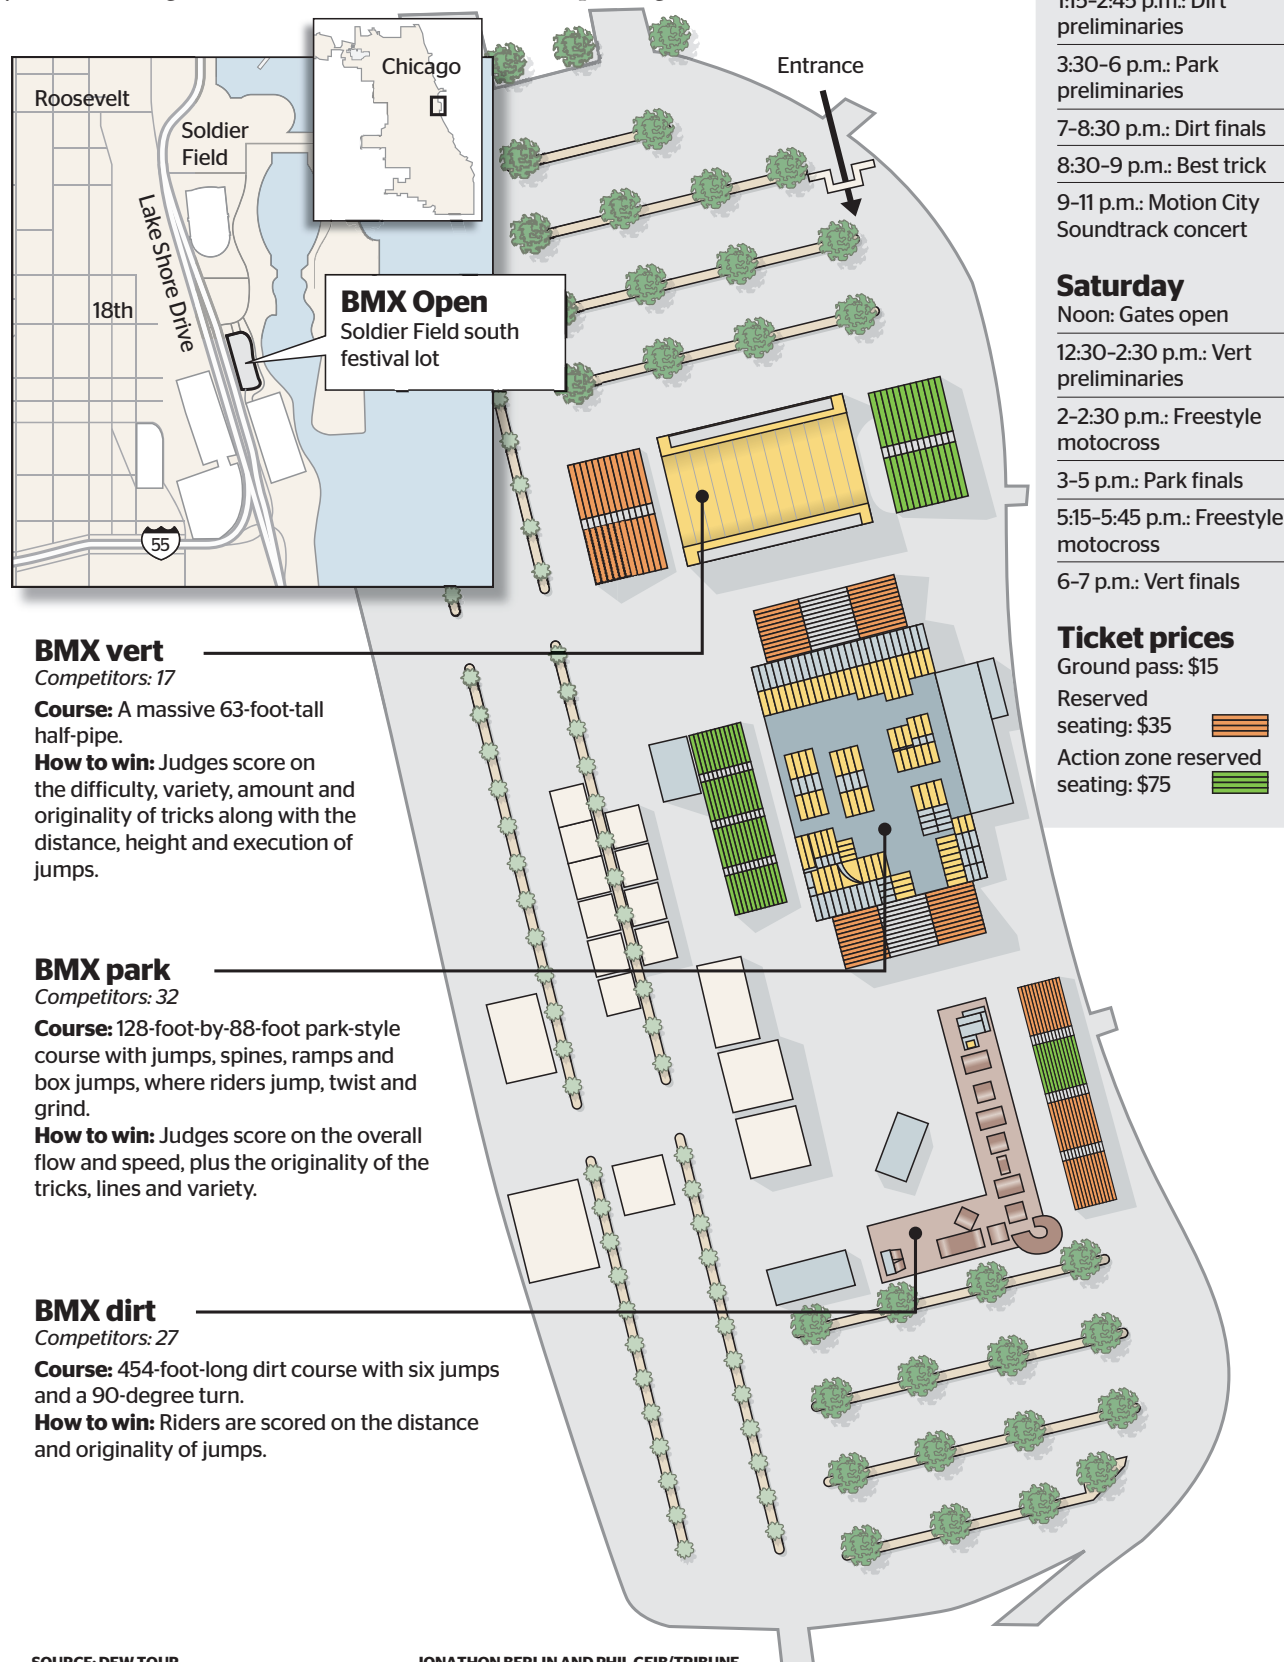

How does Rally Car driving compare to BMX?

There's four wheels opposed to two. [laughs] BMX is all about adrenaline, where in a car, it's all about mental focusing. Precision-wise, Rally Car is about feet, BMX is about inches. It's pretty awesome to get to do both. Most people got cars at 16; I waited until I was in my 30s. RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

The Dew Tour brings its high-flying tricks and stunts to Chicago for the second straight year, relocating from Grant Park to a Soldier Field parking lot.

So long, Bobby Jinx

It might be time to get out the shopping list for the White Sox.

I know I said I didn't want anything—but that's before I watched Bobby Jenks blow two games in four days.

What the Bag would really like, what would really make me sleep well at night—in addition to the meds I'm now on—is a new closer.

Nothing. That's what Jenks has right now. No velocity, no movement. Breaking ball doesn't break, slider doesn't slide, fastball not so fast. Other than that, though, he's dandy.

Hey, if you need some options, check the current roster: Matt Thornton, pretty close to unhittable this year. J.J. Putz, former closer, hasn't been scored on in months.

But other than that, I'm standing pat. I hear Prince Fielder's name being bandied about. I say again, be careful of the big-home-run, big-strikeout guy. We had Jim Thome and it was just OK.

And speaking of just OK, that leads us to our Lou Piniella tribute. So long, sir, you've joined Dusty Baker and Don Baylor in the big-name, flavor-of-the-month guy who couldn't get it done here club. Don't be ashamed, you're not alone. I'll miss the senior moments, but the window has closed.

It makes you wonder if these guys call each other up when it's all over and say, "Man, I don't get it; we had everything, and couldn't do it."

Here's a brief rundown of who might get the job.

» Bob Brenly: Pluses: He knows the team from his TV duties. Minuses: He's affiliated with the Cubs.

» Alan Trammell: Pluses: He knows the team from being Piniella's bench coach and has had managerial experience with the Tigers. Minuses: He's affiliated with the Cubs.

» Ryne Sandberg: Pluses: He's loved because of his affiliation with the Cubs. Minuses: His affiliation with the Cubs.

» Joe Girardi: Pluses: He's a winner. Minuses: Well, everyone has a past, and his was affiliated with the Cubs.

You get the point. Go outside—far outside—the family.

1 What's the best move the White Sox can make to improve for the stretch run?

I've learned from marathon training that all stretches are good, but make sure Ozzie doesn't lunge.

Clone Stephen Strasburg.

Trade Paul Konerko for Brooklyn Decker. A little eye candy in the dugout never hurt.

Lately the best move would be not going to Bobby Jenks in the ninth.

Shave the peach fuzz off Bobby Jenks' face.

2 What's the first thing Lou Piniella is going to do when his retirement starts?

Lou-se the weight. He could afford one more meltdown.

Kick dirt in his yard, where there are no umpires watching.

Erase the last four years of his life.

Call Brett Favre's press agent for "comeback" planning assistance.

Promptly remove his baseball pants and catch up on "The Bachelorette."

3 What do you call a day with no White Sox or Cubs games?

Afternoon delight. When it's right, it's right.

The perfect time to sign Antti Niemi.

A day no pigs would die.

No Cubs or Sox? Rob Base's "Joy and Pain" comes to mind.

Detox Day.

4 What should the winner of NASCAR's Brickyard 400 in Indianapolis receive?

Every king of Indy deserves a Dairy Queen.

A shiny wheelbarrow and induction into the Freemasons society.

A year's supply of jorts.

From Ricky Bobby: shake and bake with the magic man.

A private jet to immediately fly them out of Indianapolis.

5 The three-week Tour de France is over. What's a better way to spend three weeks?

Take LiLo's place in jail. A comeback sequel to "Freaky Friday," no?

Swimming across the Arctic Ocean.

Binge drinking and having anonymous sex. That's what I did.

Anything! Sorry Lance, but three weeks of watching bikes race is Tour de Boring.

Not riding a bike, committing self-sterilization for three weeks.

C.J. Watson wants to win

C.J. Watson says he knows nobody on his new-look Bulls team, but he actually introduced his elbow to Joakim Noah's face during a bitter Tennessee-Florida matchup in 2006.

"Yeah, Joakim and I have some history and some talking to do," Watson said, chuckling at the memory. "That was for the No. 1 seed in our conference. All I remember is going for the rebound and Joakim crowding and I just threw an elbow. I think I knocked his tooth out. But we beat them."

And that's exactly why Watson and Noah will get along fine once Bulls training camp rolls around.

Watson, officially acquired Thursday in a sign-and-trade transaction with the Warriors that was reported Monday, has the same goal as Noah.

"I just want to win," Watson said. "That's what I was looking for in free agency, to join a winning team and a playoff team."

Watson signed a two-year deal worth $6.5 million, according to a source. A third season at $3.7 million is a team option, the source said.

Jordan flies again

FOR REDEYE

Wanna be like Mike? This might be your best chance.

2K Sports on Thursday revealed a new game mode for "NBA 2K11" called The Jordan Challenge. The mode allows players to relive 10 "legendary" games from Michael Jordan's career.

You can try to torch the Cavs for 69 points like His Airness did in 1990, battle the flu and defeat the Jazz in Game 6 of the 1997 NBA Finals or play his last game as a Bull on June 14, 1998.

"2K11" also lets you play as some of the greatest Bulls teams, including the 1985-86, 1989-90, 1990-

91, 1994-95, 1995-96, 1996-97 and 1997-98 versions. "NBA 2K11" will be available Oct. 5.

"Fans of the series are going to be thrilled to know that in 'NBA 2K11' Michael Jordan is much, much more than just a cover athlete," said Jason Argent, vice president of marketing for 2K Sports. "We're excited to start talking about the ways that Michael will be used in the game, and there's still a lot more to come."

As for Craig Ehlo, sorry, man, but it looks like your torture will never go away.

Tired of CPAP?

Our patients are tired of their CPAP so they are not using it as directed by their physician. Dr. Craig states, "If you are not using the CPAP as directed your Sleep Apnea is not treated." You are probably still experiencing symptoms, still driving drowsy and still at risk for cardiovascular complications and other health problems. You don't have to feel this way!

Over time people accept that they feel tired and cannot function well due to their fatigue. They don't know any different and they figure that's just the way they are. If you ask them they might say they are fine. They come in because a bed partner couldn't stand their snoring anymore and they refuse to wear the CPAP. After being treated their energy returns, their mood perks up, they accomplish more and their relationships improve.

Scott was treated successfully with the oral appliance and with CPAP, but he prefers the oral appliance.

Melaney, the Clinical Director of Midwest Dental Sleep Center states, "After being treated with the oral appliance our patients tell us they did not realize just how exhausted they had been." She recalls a story where a patient's dog ate their appliance and it had to be sent back to the lab to get repaired. They commented that they had not realized how much better they felt until they were without the appliance for a few days. The patient reported that they could never go back to a time in which they were untreated and they didn't understand how they functioned that way for so many years.

The oral appliance is similar to a retainer. It is clear, plastic and fits over the teeth. The oral appliance is small enough to fit in your pocket, simple to maintain and easy to travel with. No more hoses, straps or headgear! It works by moving the base of the tongue out of the airway and toning the muscles of the airway so that they do not collapse. This is the same reason why someone doing CPR during an emergency moves the lower jaw forward to clear the airway. The concept has been around for decades.

Midwest Dental Sleep Center is the first Dental Sleep Center in Illinois and one of the first in the country. Dr. Richard Craig is a licensed general dentist and has solely dedicated his time to treating patients suffering from snoring and sleep apnea. Dr. Craig states, "our office feels like a spa, staff really get to know our patients' stories and spend the time necessary to make sure they get the best care possible."

When people first call Midwest Dental Sleep Center they are concerned about whether or not medical insurance pays for it. Melaney explains, "Medical Insurance covers it, with the exception of Medicaid and Medicare." In the past they had to work for months to actually get the pre-approval and the payment from insurance. After a great deal of advocacy and appeals, Midwest Dental Sleep Center has developed excellent relationships with insurance companies. It is such a pleasure to be able to go through exact insurance payments with the patient before they commit to treatment. Melaney adds, "We have been one of the first centers in the country to really understand how to secure payment for this service."

Sleep Apnea:

The Midwest Dental Sleep Center said most sleep apnea sufferers snore. Snoring alone, however, is not enough to diagnose sleep apnea. Other risk factors for the disease:

- high blood-pressure
- cardiovascular complications
- diabetes
- weight gain
- erectile dysfunction
- labored breathing or periods of not breathing while asleep
- daytime fatigue
- difficulty getting out of bed
- napping or dozing off
- drowsy driving
- morning headaches
- gastric reflux or heartburn
- need extra pillows to sleep
- frequent trips to the restroom at night
- easily frustrated or irritable
- hyperactivity (ADD or ADHD) in children
- difficulty with memory, ability to focus or concentration
- neck size over 15 inches for women; 17 inches for men

If you have these symptoms you might have sleep apnea and need to see your physician.

SEXY JOLIE KICKS
BUTT AS A SMART, SLY SPY
ON THE RUN IN 'SALT'

By Miki Turner

FOR REDEYE

A spy caper starring Angelina Jolie likely would do well at the box office without any heavy promotion, but the star of "Salt" doesn't mind the extra plug her latest film got when life imitated art.

Just one day before the film's press junket in Washington in mid-July, word broke that 10 Russian sleeper spies would be sent home in exchange for four American spies whose covers also had been blown in the former Soviet Union. Dressed in a black shift dress with a matching black blazer, Jolie said she was stunned by the timing of that international event.

"It was the day before we started press, so at first I didn't believe it," Jolie said in Washington. "It was just bizarre. It was two-fold. Part of me felt—the part of me that's interested in politics—felt that I hope this doesn't affect our relationships with Russia and our relationships moving forward with Afghanistan, Iran and all these things.

"And the other part of me that does films thought, 'What extraordinary timing.' All through the making of this film, we would question, 'Is this possible?' We've been following it. It's extraordinary how it's unfolding."

"Salt," a story about a CIA operative (Jolie) suspected of being a double agent, hits theaters Friday. It also stars Liev Schreiber, Chiwetel Ejiofor and Andre Braugher.

"I think as a culture, we're just fascinated with espionage and history," Jolie said. "And I think when they work, a good thriller can surprise you and have all those elements that we love in movies. They can have some good drama, good action and a lot of surprises."

Tom Cruise initially was tabbed to play Salt when the character still was a man. But once the character became Evelyn Salt, Jolie said the transformation was fairly seamless.

"The strange thing is that it's probably the opposite of what you might expect," Jolie said. "Instead of making it softer, we made it harder."

Translation: She kicked a lot of butt. When asked if she could apply those same moves in real life if a situation with the paparazzi who constantly trail her and longtime partner Brad Pitt came up, the actress initially laughed and then added with a sly grin: "One day I'm sure! It's funny; you've got it in the back of your mind, but I just end up playing around with the kids and stuff. But no, if the day comes, I'll be ready."

There probably are times that both Pitt and Jolie wish that they just could disappear with their six kids. Their private lives have become such a cottage industry for the tabloids that Schreiber was a little intimidated about meeting his new co-star for the first time.

"I get uncomfortable around famous people and beautiful women, and she was kind of a double threat," Schreiber said. "But then we bonded very quickly over children. We were very quickly able to develop a friendship, but it was around that, and that was great because all the sexual tension kind of falls away, and you can focus on the person as an actor and a co-worker."

Bland thriller

The day of CIA agent Evelyn Salt's (Angelina Jolie) wedding anniversary is going OK—until she's accused of being a Russian spy. It's either mistaken identity or her cover is blown; either way, she's hightailing it away from the grasp of fellow intelligence officials (Chiwetel Ejiofor, Liev Schreiber) who need to bring her in.

The buzz:

Writer Kurt Wimmer, who takes the blame for last year's abysmal "Law Abiding Citizen," clearly has spent many hours watching "The Fugitive" and the "Bourne" series and any number of '80s movies featuring evil Russians. Perhaps not the best guy to pen a comeback for director Phillip Noyce ("Catch a Fire," "Patriot Games") or Jolie, appearing for the first time since 2008's dimwitted assassin movie "Wanted."

The verdict:

Needlessly leaving the door open for "Salt 2: Saltier," "Salt" is politically moronic and narratively dead. We learn little about Salt and less that makes sense. Jolie, tough as always, doesn't have much to do but glare and run, and despite Salt executing numerous unlikely stunts with ease, there are fewer exciting action sequences than unintentional laughs. Perhaps the title is an ironic joke by people who know they made a movie that's flavorless and stale.

ISPY ... GOING UNDERCOVER ONSCREEN

By Matt Pais METROMIX

Look to your left, now to your right. One of those people is a spy who could kill you with one throat chop/face punch/roundhouse kick.

OK, probably not. That's just the way it feels this year at the movies. We've seen several characters who are trained assassins working undercover or are spies on highly classified globe-trotting missions. As Angelina Jolie hits screens this weekend as a CIA agent in "Salt," let's shine a bright white light on these movies.

Jolie in 'Salt'
SONY PICTURES

	'SALT'	'KNIGHT AND DAY'	'KILLERS'	'THE SPY NEXT DOOR'
TOPIC
The main questions	Is CIA agent Evelyn Salt (Jolie) a secret Russian spy trained from childhood to infiltrate the American government?	Will June (Cameron Diaz) fall for Roy (Tom Cruise) even though his work as a spy almost gets her killed? Are Cruise's teeth really that white?	Did Jen (Katherine Heigl) really not suspect that her husband Spencer (Ashton Kutcher) is a secret agent? Can audiences sit through all this obnoxious patter without becoming ill?	Can Bob Ho (Jackie Chan) ditch his spy lifestyle to settle down with his girlfriend (Amber Valletta)? Will he have a harder time with his last mission or his gal's three pesky kids?
Sexual chemistry	Salt's feelings for her husband (August Diehl) are never clear. The only thing remotely sexual is Salt taking off her panties to cover up a surveillance camera. Glad to see that's covered in CIA training.	Considerable. The rapport between Cruise and Diaz is all the movie really has going for it.	If your major turn-ons include "stupid dialogue" and "immensely annoying people," you'll probably find the movie ultra-hot.	Even if it weren't a kids' movie, Chan and Valletta still would go together like hot dogs and peanut butter.
The element of danger	Apparently Salt can jump from truck to truck or in between trains with no risk of death, so all the chase scenes and gunfire in the world can't make her situation seem dangerous.	High. We're not going to act like we could spin around on a moving motorcycle while accurately firing a gun at villains.	Heigl does a lot of shrieking as bullets whiz by. Really, though, just combining these two stars in the same movie is as dangerous as it gets.	Chan tries to make oatmeal! And generic Russians attack. How contemporary.
Are they believable as spies/killers?	Yes. Say this for Jolie: She's a credible badass.	Cruise convinces us he could infiltrate anywhere and charm the paint off a wall.	Well, they're certainly not believable as actors.	Chan makes a credible bad-die fighter. Casting George Lopez and Billy Ray Cyrus as his colleagues may not have been the way to go.

The Pillars of the Earth

9 p.m. Friday, Starz
Confusing and clunky at first, this melodrama builds into a titillating tale of treachery, war, religion and delightfully hammy scenery-chewing.

Down to 'Earth': Bad-guy fun

Memo to the casting directors of any future James Bond flicks: David Oakes wants to be your villain.

And if you don't believe the Brit can pull it off, watch him get downright medieval as the nasty William Hamleigh in "The Pillars of the Earth," the $40 million adaptation of Ken Follett's bestseller that will air over eight hours and six nights beginning at 9 p.m. Friday on Starz.

"Pillars" gave the friendly newcomer a chance to explore his darker side—and have a great time doing it. "Oh, you have no idea; it's brilliant," Oakes told me. "I get a horse, a sword. I get to set fire to pretty people. I do so much horrible stuff."

Hamleigh blazes a path of death and destruction through the epic miniseries about the quest to build a grand Gothic cathedral in fictional Kingsbridge, England, of the 1100s. Rufus Sewell stars as Tom Builder, a mason who dreams up the cathedral that is backed by kindly Prior Philip (Matthew MacFadyen) and opposed by the ambitious, jealous Bishop Waleran Bigod (Ian McShane). Donald Sutherland, Alison Pill, Sarah Parish and Eddie Redmayne also star in the production that was directed by Sergio

Oakes

Mimica-Gezzan, who helped Steven Spielberg stage the beach landing in "Saving Private Ryan" as an assistant director, and produced by Ridley and Tony Scott.

With a cast and crew like that, you'd think a young actor who has done mostly stage work since graduating from the Bristol Old Vic Theatre School in 2007 would be intimidated. But the Bond superfan was thrilled to work with Gotz Otto, who starred as baddie Stamper in "Tomorrow Never Dies" and plays Hamleigh's henchman in "Pillars."

"Going from watching him on stage or on screen ... it was fantastic," Oakes said. "In a kind of way I learned to play a bad guy by watching him, so there you go."

Despite being a seemingly easygoing bloke, Oakes isn't done playing bad. He is shooting Showtime's series "The Borgias," in which he will play Jeremy Irons' son.

"I'm not quite as nasty as William, but yet again, for some reason everyone seems to cast me as the bad guy. I don't know why," he said, adding that he's more than happy to do it a third time in a Bond film.

"I'll tell you what; I would do that for free. Don't tell my agent, but I would be happy to play a Bond villain for free."

Racine Plumbing Bar & Grill (2642 N. Lincoln Ave.) opens with limited service this weekend for Taste of Lincoln Avenue. The bar will reopen for full service Thursday.

Bun in the sun

Longman & Eagle, $12

2657 N. Kedzie Ave. 773-276-7110

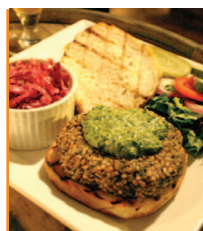

A half-pound of Slagel Farms beef, four-year aged cheddar from Wisconsin's Widmer's Cheese Cellars, Nueske's bacon and a brioche bun from local bake shop La Farine are the stuff burgers are made of at this Logan Square hang.

10 new burgers to try this summer

By M. Kathleen Pratt

Keeping up with Chicago's burger scene is hard work. If you haven't sampled at least a half-dozen new burgers by this point in the summer, you're falling behind. That's right: While you've been waiting for a table at Kuma's Corner, dozens of never-before-seen burgers have been flying off grills around town. (Not that we question your decision to spend hours of your life in line for a heavy metal burger.) When you're ready to get up to speed, start with these 10 noteworthy burgers, all of which debuted in the first six months of 2010. M. KATHLEEN PRATT IS THE METROMIX DINING PRODUCER. KPRATT@TRIBUNE.COM

Fountain-head, $9

1970 W. Montrose Ave. 773-697-8204

A half-pound of beef on a pretzel bun from

La Farine forms the basis for the house burger at this beer-focused Ravenswood pub. Trick it out as you like with cheese, bacon, a fried egg or even a slice of house-made pork country pate ($1 per topping).

Veg alternative: House-made black bean, sweet corn and wheat berry veggie burger ($9, above)

Sable, $15

505 N. State St. 312-755-9704

The steak burger at this River North spot is the most expensive on this list, but that's because it's a full half-pound of ground top round from Dietzler Farms—and there's no charge for extras such as bacon, cheese, avocado or a fried egg. The base model includes caramelized onions and a pretzel bun.

Veg alternative: Wild mushroom and brown rice burger on a whole grain oat bun, topped with red onion jam, goat cheese and porcini aioli and baby arugula ($12)

The Portage, $10.95

3938 N. Central Ave. 773-853-0779

Gastropub fare is the focus at this Portage Park newcomer, so of course there's a burger on the menu. Get ready for a third-pound of wagyu beef (aka American kobe) topped with a roasted beefsteak tomato, caramelized onions cooked with a bit of thyme from the rooftop garden, pickles, romaine and spicy aioli, piled on a pretzel roll. Smoked gouda, cheddar or American cheese is optional.

Revolution Brewing, $11-$13

2323 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-227-2739

Four burgers on the menu at this Logan Square brewpub make for plenty of choice. Each 10-ounce option comes on a house-made poppy seed and salt bun. Toppings include pepper jack cheese and pulled pork (Smokehouse Burger, $13) and gorgonzola, cremini mushrooms and crispy shallots (Forest Burger, $12, left).

WHAT'S HIS BEEF?

Metromix's toughest burger critic, the Great Burgerelli, reviews new Chicago burgers the first Friday of every month. Check out past reviews at metromix.com and look for him in this space on Aug. 5.

Cork & Kerry at the Park, $7.95-$8.95

3258 S. Princeton Ave. 312-842-0769

Unlike the original, the new Bridgeport location of Beverly institution Cork & Kerry serves food, and burgers get special attention. A lineup of five half-pounders, each served on a pretzel bun, includes a South Side Irish burger (Dubliner cheese, Irish bacon, cole slaw, $8.95), a Latino burger (chipotle mayo, queso, chorizo and guac, $8.95, above) and the Straight-Up ($7.95), topped with cheddar or American cheese, bacon optional.

Benny's Chop House, $9.99

444 N. Wabash Ave. 312-626-2444

The Benny's Burger isn't on the dinner menu at this River North steakhouse, so you'd best show up during lunch if you want a shot at the 10-ouncer packed with trimmings from the restaurant's prime steaks. (Or just ask nicely during dinner hours.)

D.S. Tequila Company, $8.49

3352 N. Halsted St. 773-697-9127

Burgers aren't the first thing that come to mind for pairing with tequila, but they get top billing at this Boystown spot. The opening menu shops three burgers (plus turkey and pork options) made with a half-pound of Allen Brothers beef and promises more burgers to come. The most unusual so far? The huevos ranchero burger (above) with refried beans, crisp corn tortillas, a fried egg and spiced tomato relish.

J. Wellington's, $6.50-$6.75

2045 W. North Ave. 773-687-9142

The burger-centric menu at this Wicker Park counter-service BYOB allows you to build your own creation or choose from house options such as the Wellington (cheddar, applewood-smoked bacon, fried onions, tangy house sauce, $6.75, right) and the Trippin' Swede (sauteed mushrooms, swiss, chipotle ketchup, $6.50). All are served on a choice of brioche or wheat bun.

Veg alternative: Tofurger, fried tofu topped with coleslaw, tomato, pepper jack and barbecue sauce ($5.50)

M Burger, $2.49-$4.49

161 E. Huron St. 312-254-8500

Fast food burgers with a pedigree are the m.o. at this Lettuce Entertain You counter-service spot just off the Mag Mile. Choose a hamburger, cheeseburger (left) or M Burger (the namesake gets bacon, cheese and a special sauce), all available as singles or doubles.

Veg alternative: Nurse Betty, an all-veggie sandwich ($2.99)

Pink Floyd's "The Wall" still blows my mind.

@joeldylan

OK Computer is a modern masterpiece. Last 4 tracks are a stunning end. If you've never heard "Lucky" or "The Tourist," find them!

Stripper style, no shirt and bad Bieb

SHOCKING Hot dolls

Taylor Momsen fired her stylist because she didn't want to be "molded into this thing that wasn't who I am." The 16-year-old "Gossip Girl" star tells MTV that her outfits, which have included shredded tights and lucite stripper heels with a slot for cash, are inspired by her doll collection. "I look at their outfits and kind of imitate them." Apparently her dolls are from the Wildly Inappropriate Young Miss collection.

SATISFYING Greek beefcake

Kellan Lutz, who showed off his skivvies in some hot Calvin Klein ads, says he will continue to keep the skin show going in two upcoming films. In one of them, the Greek epic "Immortals," he dons almost nothing but a gladiator skirt for his role as Poseidon. "Always got to be shirtless, right?" he told online.com. Ah, Kellan, you know what we want.

SILLY Love life hit iceberg

Pity Leonardo DiCaprio. The hunky "Inception" star says "Titanic" took a toll on his love life. "I had better success meeting girls before 'Titanic.' My interactions with them didn't have all the stigma behind it," he tells Rolling Stone. This from the man who has dated two of the sexiest models in the world.

STRANGE Will he shave his head?

Canadian cutie Justin Bieber will guest-star in the season premiere of "CSI." The Bieb is slated to play a troubled teen who is faced with a terrible decision regarding his only brother, according to CBS. What? Our beloved Bieb as a teen with a dark side? This can't possibly work.

Celebrity skin

Just looking at these celebrities should make you all hot and bothered. Men's Health and Women's Health have determined the 2010 Best Summer Bodies. Among the top five: two vampires and one werewolf.

WOMEN

1. Brooklyn Decker
2. Jessica Alba

3. Ashley Greene
4. Vanessa Hudgens
5. Jessica Biel

MEN

1. Kellan Lutz
2. Matthew McConaughey
3. Taylor Lautner
4. Zac Efron
5. Mario Lopez

So Efron cool

Zac Efron (right), who is in town to promote "Charlie St. Cloud," enjoys dinner and a movie, just like the rest of us. The dreamy Efron says an average Saturday date night with Vanessa Hudgens consists of sneaking out to a restaurant and seeing a movie. "We go to the movies a lot. The movies is a place we tend to not get bothered, surprisingly enough." The best he's seen recently? "Toy Story 3." REUTERSPHOTO

» Check back next week for Matt Pais' full interview with Efron.

Muscles make the movie

Sylvester Stallone tells the L.A. Times he knew he was becoming expendable when Tim Burton did "Batman." "The action movies changed radically when it became possible to Velcro your muscles on. It was the beginning of a new era. The visual took over. The special effects became more important than the single person." Stallone, who starred in the execrable "Judge Dredd," added: "I wish I had thought of Velcro muscles myself. I didn't have to go to the gym for all those years."

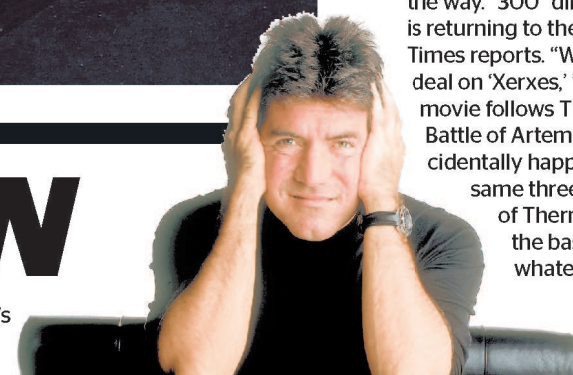

Kerr, Bloom tie knot

Miranda Kerr and Orlando Bloom (above) have secretly wed. Reps for the beautiful couple confirmed the news to usmagazine.com, and in a statement released Thursday, supermodel Kerr announced that she canceled an appearance at the Australian department store David Jones to celebrate. "David Jones very graciously released me during this period so we could celebrate an intimate ceremony and honeymoon together." GETTY IMAGES FILE PHOTO

301

More painted-on ab muscles are on the way. "300" director Zack Snyder is returning to the battlefield, the L.A. Times reports. "We closed the writing deal on 'Xerxes,'" Snyder said. "This movie follows Themistocles and the Battle of Artemisium, which coincidentally happens on the exact same three days as the Battle of Thermopylae [which was the basis of '300']. Uhhh, whatever."

$3.8 MILLION

That's the amount Simon Cowell and his show are being sued for by a former "Britain's Got Talent" contestant, according to The Hollywood Reporter. The contestant claims she was humiliated and degraded during her May 2009 stint on the show.
